Mayor Elicker to Volunteer at Neighborhood Pop-Up Pantry
Providing Groceries for Up to 450 Families

NEW HAVEN, Conn.— Tomorrow New Haven Mayor Justin Elicker will join representatives from United Way of Greater New Haven, CT Food Bank, and Coordinated Food Assistance Network at a Neighborhood Pop-up Pantry that will provide groceries to feed up to 450 families. This Neighborhood Pop-up Pantry will increase the capacity of local pantry partners to meet the food needs of the New Haven community. As the COVID-19 pandemic has disrupted the economy, leaving many out of work or unable to make ends meet, United Way and its partners have stepped in to fill the gaps. Thursday's event will provide close to 50 lbs. of food per family.
