New Haven City Transformation Plan

What is the City Transformation Plan?
In Fall 2014, 67 organizations came together with city agencies and other community partners to apply for designation as a federal Promise Zone. From this work, Mayor Toni Harp asked the city to design a five-year New Haven City Transformation Plan (CTP). In Spring 2015, we learned that our bid for the Promise Zone designation was not successful, although we were one of the top 10 finalists in the nation.

We proceeded with the CTP and many additional organizations signed on to a broader effort, committing to:

- Create new partnerships for innovative solutions to social issues
- Use data to be accountable to New Haven communities
- Emphasize equity in all our work

What is the New Haven Promise Zone?
The City is applying again to consider part of New Haven as a federal Promise Zone. New Haven, like many cities, has been marked by inequality and segregation. Certain neighborhoods have been stuck in poverty, with few opportunities and resources for residents. Too few of the benefits of economic development have actually reached the city’s poorer neighborhoods.

Having these neighborhoods become a Promise Zone helps us address these issues all together. While the City Transformation Plan aims to make improvements for the whole city, it will specifically target areas with lower incomes, where conditions make it very difficult for individuals, families, and neighborhoods to thrive. It also identifies “opportunity groups” that have previously been underserved or left behind. Examples include focused work to improve educational achievement for youth of color, health needs for young mothers, or job training in neighborhoods with high unemployment.

Get Involved!
It’s important that city residents get involved in making sure this plan works for you!

- Check out the plan web site at http://www.transformnewhaven.org/ to monitor the work and connect to specific opportunities
- Contact your Alder to get involved

How to Update Your W-4 Payroll Withholding with Your Employer to Change Your Refund

The following is presented for informational purposes and is not intended as tax or legal advice. Money Management International
The new tax bill that took effect for the 2018 tax year made significant changes to the tax code. As a result, some Americans are getting a smaller tax refund than in previous years, and others are owing money when they expected to get money back.
A smaller refund doesn’t necessarily mean you paid more in taxes for the year. You could actually pay less income tax and wind up with a smaller refund depending on how much money is withheld from your paychecks throughout the year. However, it can still be disappointing if you were planning on a large refund. If you’d like to change your refund for next year, you may want to update your Form W-4s with your employers.

What is the Form W-4?
Form W-4 is the tax form that you submit when you start a new job as an employee. You can update it at any time by giving your employer a new Form W-4. Employers use your Form W-4 and income to help determine how much money to withhold from your paychecks and send to the IRS. If you want a larger refund, you may want to claim fewer allowances or ask your employer to withhold more money each paycheck. If you want a smaller refund, you may want to claim more allowances and make sure you aren’t having additional money withheld.
The IRS has a withholding calculator you can use to check your withholdings. It doesn’t work for every situation, but it’s a great resource if you’re looking for help while updating or filling out a new Form W-4.

Reviewing and updating your Form W-4s
The part of the Form W-4 that you fill out only takes up a third of a page, and most of that is just your name, address, and Social Security number. However, filling out the Form W-4 can still be confusing, especially if you have more than one job or both you and your spouse work.

There are seven boxes that you’ll want to review when filling out a Form W-4. A few of these (boxes two, three, and four) are for your identifying and contact information and should be easy to understand and fill out.
Box three asks if you’re single, married, or married and file your tax return with the married filing single status. Your filing status can impact your tax situation, so marking the correct box is important.
After boxes one through four, skip ahead to box seven, which asks if you’re exempt from withholdings.
Some employees don’t need to have any money taken out of their paychecks because they know they won’t owe any federal income tax by the end of the year. These employees can write “exempt” in box seven and then skip boxes five and six.
To qualify as exempt you need to meet two criteria:
1. You didn’t have any federal income tax liability last year, and all the federal income tax you paid was refunded when you filed your tax return.
2. You don’t expect to owe any federal income tax this year.
For example, if you’re single and no one else can claim you as a dependent, you won’t owe any federal income tax if you make less than $12,000—the standard deduction for a single taxpayer.
If you’re not exempt, go back to boxes five and six.
Box five may be the most important, and most confusing, on the Form W-4—it’s where you’ll put your number of allowances.
Allowances correspond with situations when you’re eligible for tax credits or deductions.
Each allowance you claim will lower your employer to take less money out of your paycheck.
A single taxpayer who doesn’t qualify for any tax credits will only claim one allowance.
Claiming more allowances could lead to a smaller refund (or owing more money) when you file your tax return.
There are two worksheets on page three of the Form W-4 that you can work through to determine how many allowances to claim.
If you have more than one job or both you and your spouse work, then you’ll need to fill out a Form W-4 for each job.
You should use the two-earners/multiple jobs worksheet on page four to figure out your total number of allowances.
Claim all your allowances on the Form W-4 for your highest-paying job, or the highest-paying job between you and your spouse. Claim zero allowances on all the other Form W-4s.
Box six allows you to have a specific amount of money withheld from each paycheck. You may want to do this if you have other forms of income, such as contract work, dividends, or long-term capital gains that you receive without any money being withheld. If you don’t withhold enough and owe $1,000 or more when you file your tax return, you may have to also pay a penalty and interest. So, it could be a good idea to have money withheld from your paychecks. Alternatively, you could make estimated tax payments throughout the year.

IRS Withholding Calculator

The IRS encourages everyone to use the Withholding Calculator to perform a quick “paycheck checkup.” This is even more important following the recent changes to the tax law for 2018 and beyond. The Calculator helps you identify your tax withholding to make sure you have the right amount of tax withheld from your paycheck at work.

There are several reasons to check your withholding:
Checking your withholding can help protect against having too little tax withheld and facing an unexpected tax bill or penalty at tax time next year. At the same time, with the average refund topping $2,800, you may prefer to have less tax withheld up front and receive more in your paychecks. If you are an employee, the Withholding Calculator helps you determine whether you need to give your employer a new Form W-4, Employee’s Withholding Allowance Certificate. You use your results from the Calculator to help fill out the form and adjust your income tax withholding. If you receive pension income, you can use the results from the calculator to complete a Form W-4P and give it to your payer.

Plan Ahead: Tips For Using This Program:
The Calculator will ask you to estimate values of your 2019 income, the number of children you will claim for the Child Tax Credit and Earned Income Tax Credit, and other items that will affect your 2019 taxes. This process will take a few minutes. Gather your most recent pay stubs. Have your most recent income tax return handy; a copy of your completed Form 1040 will help you estimate your 2019 income and other characteristics and speed the process.

Keep in mind that the Calculator’s results will only be as accurate as the information you provide. If your circumstances change during the year, come back to this Calculator to make sure that your withholding is still correct. The Withholding Calculator does not ask you to provide sensitive personally-identifiable information like your name, Social Security number, address or bank account numbers. The IRS does not save or record the information you enter on the Calculator.

IMPORTANT NOTE: This Withholding Calculator works for most taxpayers. People with more complex tax situations should use the instructions in Publication 505, Tax Withholding and Estimated Tax. This includes taxpayers who owe self-employment tax, alternative minimum tax, the tax on unearned income of dependents or certain other taxes, people with long-term capital gains or qualified dividends, and taxpayers who have taxable social security benefits. (The calculator won’t determine the taxable portion of your social security benefits, but if you estimate the taxable amount (e.g., using the worksheet in the Form 1040 instructions), you can enter that into the calculator as other nonwage income so that the calculator can take it into account.). To use the calculator, go to the web address above.

Why Send Your Child to Camp Easy Breezy?

Better Health
Children who go to an asthma camp have better asthma control. They are less likely to go to the emergency department or to be hospitalized for their asthma. They also miss less days of school from asthma.

Peer Support
Campers feel less different when they make friends with other children who have asthma. Siblings, who go to Camp Easy Breezy, learn how to help their brother or sister to better control their asthma.

Educational Activities
Weekly asthma education is provided. Campers learn how to manage their asthma through fun games and activities. They also learn special ways to breathe during an asthma attack. Campers also do ‘traditional’ camp activities like arts and crafts. They go swimming and go on field trips, too.

Less Worry
A registered nurse (RN) is on-site from 9:00 a.m. to 3:00 p.m., including field trips. Camp Easy Breezy is the only City of New Haven camp with a nurse. The nurse makes sure campers take their medications correctly and when needed.

The unemployment rate for the City of New Haven is reported at only 3.7%.
The State of Connecticut Department of Labor using the following definitions determines that figure:

LABOR FORCE CONCEPTS (As reprinted from DOL Office of Research)

The civilian labor force comprises all state residents age 16 years and older classified as employed or unemployed in accordance with criteria described below. Excluded are members of the military and persons in institutions (correctional and mental health, for example). The employed are all persons who did any work as paid employees or in their own business during the survey week, or who have worked 15 hours or more as unpaid workers in an enterprise operated by a family member. Persons temporarily absent from a job because of illness, bad weather, strike or for personal reasons are also counted as employed whether they were paid by their employer or were seeking other jobs. The unemployed are all persons who did not work, but were available for work during the survey week (except for temporary illness) and made specific efforts to find a job in the prior four weeks. Persons waiting to be recalled to a job from which they had been laid off need not be looking for work to be classified as unemployed.

The unemployment rate represents the number unemployed as a percent of the civilian labor force.

With the exception of those persons temporarily absent from a job or waiting to be recalled to one, persons with no job and who are not actively looking for one are counted as “not in the labor force”.

Over the course of a year, the size of the labor force and levels of employment undergo fluctuations due to such seasonal events as changes in weather, reduced or expanded production, harvests, major holidays and closing of schools. Because these seasonal events follow a regular pattern each year, their influence on statistical trends can be eliminated by adjusting the monthly statistics. Seasonal Adjustment makes it easier to observe cyclical and other non-seasonal developments.

The state Job Service is where you would traditionally receive help in seeking out employers who are hiring and receive other services to help prepare for the job market.

MAKE SURE YOU COUNT!
Go and get registered with the State of Connecticut Department of Labor 37 Marne Street as a Job Seeker. Keep in monthly contact - stay included in the unemployment rate. (DOL February ’19 – only 3,198 people in New Haven without a job)

How to Effectively Market Yourself for a Job When You’ve Been Long-Term Unemployed
www.shrm.org

For most people losing a job is a devastating experience. Not finding one right away is even more discouraging, but the sooner you get started looking and the more dedicated you are, the more likely your search will be a positive experience.

The Society for Human Resource Management (SHRM) is the largest HR association in the world, with more than 275,000 members. Our members, HR professionals in organizations representing all sizes and industries, recognize that as a result of the years-long economic downturn, an unprecedented number of Americans have been unemployed for six months or more.

We are educating our members on how to review their organization’s hiring procedures to ensure they do not intentionally or inadvertently give less consideration to certain job candidates based solely on their unemployment status. Nevertheless, having a resume with gaps in work history can pose a challenge for the job seeker. This challenge is not insurmountable, and SHRM members offer the following advice to help you, as a job seeker, put your best foot forward.

Step 1: Approach your job search as though it WERE your job

Devote time—up to eight hours a day—to finding a job. Set a schedule with daily tasks in order to establish a structured routine. Having a schedule makes people more efficient. Giving yourself a deadline by, say, blocking off 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. to work on an application or make your calls is better than saying you’ll get around to it as soon as you can.

Try to maintain a flexible attitude, and project a willingness to learn. Your old job/career may not exist anymore, so you may need to develop new skills or apply the old ones in a different way.

If you are feeling stuck, seek out groups of people who are in the same situation. Many community centers, religious entities and other organizations host meetings for job seekers. It may help you to discuss your efforts with others.

Step 2: Stay active by engaging in productive activities

Find activities to show that you are still engaged in your community and focused on gaining skills and qualifications. Activities also fill time on your resume, showing employers that you haven’t been stagnant since you left your previous position.

- Personal Development or Professional Development

Classes at a community college, university or training program can keep you up-to-date with technology and other trends in your field so that you’ll be informed when you do go on interviews or even chat informally with employers.

Many educational institutions have career centers with well-connected advisors who know what employers are looking for who is hiring. Consider a training program or temporary position, offered by many employers. Short-term positions give you a chance to test-drive a specific job or company.

- Development Through Volunteer Engagement

Volunteering can involve much more than planting trees and painting buildings; it’s also a great way to learn new skills. You can design a website, organize an event, write letters on behalf of the organization or have any variety of other responsibilities.

Volunteering can give you exposure to a new field or allow you to try out a new career. Volunteering at a specific organization you want to work for is an excellent way to get your foot in the door and make a notable first impression. If you can show you are a valuable and effective volunteer, employers will think you may make a valuable and effective employee.

Volunteering enables you to expand your network. By working on a cause you are passionate about, you will meet like-minded people, some of whom may be able to help with your job search.

Volunteering is a fun and valuable way to break up the monotony and provide you with an anchor while you look for a job. It can also provide a sense of accomplishment.

Step 3: Update and revise your resume

Understand the online application process before submitting your resume. Applying for a job today requires that you tailor your resume to the specific position. Before submitting your resume, make sure it contains some of the key words that are outlined in the job description.

Use terms that apply to the specific job and/or industry. Sprinkling in newer terms can show that you’re current with the technology and other trends of the field.

Include accomplishments—both at work and outside of it—so employers can see how you’ve done, not just what you’ve done.

Quantify your experiences. Use numbers to communicate changes or improvements you have made over a specific period. Examples include quantitative gains in production or performance, notable customer satisfaction, greater organizational performance, cost reductions or cost avoidance.

Include legitimate volunteer or nontraditional work experience, to eliminate or decrease any gaps in employment.

If your formal education occurred more than 10 years ago, consider taking dates off and adding other training or education you have obtained since then.

Step 4: Network, network, network

Networking is still the most effective way to find out about jobs. Prepare your “elevator speech,” in which you describe your skills and career goals in two minutes. Preparing ahead helps you take advantage of opportunities to talk, at a moment’s notice, with someone who may be in a position to help you.

- Reach out to family, friends, neighbors and associates.

Use your connections to your advantage. The more people you know, the better your chances of finding and landing a job. Talk with your previous employers and co-workers. People who have seen you at work before and are in your field of experience can be the best people to know.
Seek out community groups for assistance, including those for unemployed people, who help one another with leads, references and other support. Programs, both formal and informal, have started in communities nationwide.

If you can’t find a group in your community, start one. With nearly a quarter of Americans laid off at some point because of the recession, you do not have to be alone in your search. Be willing to help others in your groups. Paying it forward can be of great benefit when your colleagues get settled in a new role. Not only will it help you, but it looks great to businesses if you let them know you started a group or are active in one that helps people in the community.

- Use online sites, including LinkedIn.

If you don’t have a LinkedIn profile, create one. Employers use this site to look for new talent so make sure your profile contains keywords that are relevant to jobs that interest you.

Use the search function on LinkedIn to find profiles of people seeking positions similar to what you are interested in pursuing. Then use these profiles as templates to modify your profile.

See what companies your connections and their connections have worked for. Those who worked at a company a few years ago likely still know people who work there.

Join groups that apply to you. Many industries, regions and even companies have their own pages. These are a great source of information and a way to keep current with what’s happening in a particular field.

- Reach out to employers that interest you.

Many companies host open houses or exhibitions to showcase their work. If it looks interesting to you, check it out. Ask questions and make some contacts, too.

If you want to talk with someone at an organization, go for it. Reach out to a firm you have great interest in and ask to come in and learn more about it. Don’t mention employment in the first conversation. A good first impression can lead to that important referral or helpful information.

- Look for local nonprofit or government organizations that can help you with your job search.

Never pay an organization to find you a job—most likely it is not a legitimate business.

Take advantage of the services that government-funded Career One Stop centers offer. These centers provide free assistance to job seekers. More information is available at http://www.careeronestop.org/

Learn about local nonprofit organizations serving the long-term unemployed. The programs are as varied as the communities they serve and can be researched online.

Step 5: Become More Technologically Proficient

It’s no secret that many employers look up their applicants online. While most people know to keep offensive pictures and posts off Facebook, you can take this a step further by creating a brand for yourself. Use LinkedIn as your primary tool, but learn more about how to effectively use Twitter and Facebook as a means of “branding yourself.”

Social networks are an excellent way to interact with potential employers. Sharing information via a status update on LinkedIn or re-tweeting or tweeting at an employer or sending messages on Facebook with relevant information can get you noticed.

Scanning blogs on relevant topics allows you to stay up-to-date with the industry and hear different perspectives. Commenting on blogs and engaging with their authors are other valuable methods of gaining contacts in the field.

Joining listserves is a great way to crowdsource your information gathering. People often mention opportunities they heard of or topics they think are worth sharing.

Although it’s efficient to comb through the larger online job boards, it’s worth noting that many listings receive hundreds of applicants. One way to find less visible opportunities is to research what companies you might like to work for and search their sites for vacancies. It takes longer to do this, but you may just find that perfect under-the-radar opportunity. Following up your application with a message to the company contact person further enhances your potential of being noticed.

If you need help in navigating the world of computers or even getting access to a computer consider a local library. Most libraries have computers available to the public, and some offer free resources like classes or coaching. Career One-Stops also offer classes and computers for public use.

Step 6: Prepare for your future interview

Get fit by exercising and eating right. When you feel good you will come across well in an interview.

Consider how you look. A good haircut and neat, clean business attire are a way to say “I respect myself.” You don’t have to buy expensive suits if you don’t have the budget; just scour the resale shops, and make sure the clothes fit and are clean and ironed.

Address gaps in your resume’s work history upfront. Offering an explanation prevents a potential employer from making assumptions that may be incorrect. Similarly, take the opportunity to address any possible concerns about your being overqualified for the position. When a candidate raises the issue, this can help put an employer’s mind at ease.

Never underestimate the value of a handwritten note. Send one to each person who takes time to meet with you in an interview or with whom you have a key networking conversation. In a high-tech world, the high-touch approach always gets noticed.

5 Questions Every Candidate Should Ask in a Job Interview

By Dominique Rodgers
Monster Contributing Writer

For many job seekers, the “Do you have any questions for me?” portion of an interview signals the end is near. It’s tempting to just say “no” and get out of the hot seat as quickly as possible, but fight that urge.

Asking questions shows the interviewer you were listening while they were talking, conveys your interest in the company and helps you decide if it’s where you want to work. After all, interviews are a two-way street -- the hiring team decides whether you’re what they want in an employee, and you decide if the company culture and specific role are where you want to devote your time and energy for the foreseeable future.

Here are five essential questions you should ask in a job interview.

1. “How do you define success for this job?”

This question helps you get a clear understanding of what the job entails and the expectations the company will have for you in it, says John Crossman, president of real estate management firm Crossman & Company.

For example, if you’re applying for a sales position, an answer to this question might be that you acquire 10 new clients in the next 90 days. It may also be that you up sell current customers by 25 percent over 90 days. As a candidate, you’ll want to know whether you’ll be cold-calling prospects or focusing on existing customers before you make your decision.

2. Something specific about the organization

It’s always a great idea to ask a question that shows you did your research before the interview says Chris Delaney, author of “The 73 Rules of Influencing the Interview.” He recommends building rapport and showcasing your research skills with a technique he calls “share expertise, ask question.”

His example: “I recently read that the organization is looking to break into Europe. What do you foresee as the main barrier with this project?”

3. “Can I have a quick tour?”

See also: “Can I meet some people I’d be working with?”

Both questions will get you out of the interview room and allow you to get a better look at the office. This will give you a chance to gauge co-worker interaction, workspace design (lighting, noise level, cleanliness) and the department as a whole, says Michelle Comer, practice area leader and vice president at the Messina Group, a staffing consulting firm.

Requesting a tour or a quick introduction to potential co-workers also “signals to the interviewer that a candidate is taking a vested interest in the position,” she says.

4. “What is your favorite part about working here?”

“Companies, like job candidates, are putting their best foot forward during the interview process, often highlighting all of their corporate perks. By asking every person you interview with what they like best about working at the company you’ll get a better sense of the perks that people regularly experience versus the perks that live only on paper,” explains Sherry Dixon, senior vice president at Adecco Staffing US.

5. “Do you see any reason I might not be a good fit for this position?”

It may seem counterintuitive to inquire about your potential flaws during an interview, but it’s actually a great thing to bring up at the end of the interview says Morgan Nichols, managing partner at Chicago-based recruiting and staffing firm Torrey & Gray.

“This gives you an opportunity to know that the interviewer is thinking about you and gives you a last chance to clarify any misconceptions they may have or elaborate further on something important.”

Fact Sheet: One-Stop Career Centers

The Workforce Innovation and Opportunity Act (WIOA), signed into law on July 22, 2014, is the first legislative reform of the public workforce system in 15 years. WIOA presents an extraordinary opportunity to improve job and career options for our nation’s workers and jobseekers through an integrated, job-driven public workforce system that links diverse talent to businesses. It supports the development of strong, vibrant regional economies where businesses thrive and people want to live and work.

HIGHLIGHTS OF WIOA REFORMS FOR ONE-STOP CENTERS

WIOA retains the nationwide system of one-stop centers, which directly provide an array of employment services and connect customers to work-related training and education. WIOA furthers a high quality one-stop center system by continuing to align investments in workforce, education, and economic development to regional in-demand jobs. The new law places greater emphasis on one-stops achieving results for jobseekers, workers, and businesses. WIOA reinforces the partnerships and strategies necessary for one-stops to: provide job seekers and workers with the high-quality career services, education and training, and supportive services they need to get good jobs and stay employed, and to help businesses find skilled workers and access other supports, including education and training for their current workforce.

Improved Access to Comprehensive Services

A local area also may have additional affiliate one-stop centers with any subset of partners, or specialized centers.

Local boards have the flexibility to include additional partners in one-stop centers. The law specifically identifies the following federally funded partners: Employment and training programs administered by the Social Security Administration, including the Ticket to Work and the Self-Sufficiency Program; employment and training programs carried out by the Small Business Administration; Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP) employment and training programs; Client Assistance Programs; and programs authorized under the National and Community Service Act of 1990.

WIOA allows other partners to be part of the one-stop delivery system, including local employers and community-based, faith-based, and/or non-profit organizations, as well as employment, education, and training programs provided by public libraries or in the private sector.

Enhanced and Streamlined Operations:

Local areas are encouraged to integrate the intake, case management, reporting, and fiscal and management accountability systems of one-stop partners.

All partners are required to share in the funding of services and infrastructure costs of the one-stop delivery system.

One-stop operators will be selected through a competitive process.

Local boards are responsible for improving access to and the effectiveness of one-stop and program services.

Local boards continue to be required to negotiate and regularly review a Memorandum of Understanding (MOU) with every one-stop partner to describe operations, services provided and coordinated, funding, and referrals. MOUs will be reviewed every three years.

Local boards will certify one-stops every three years, using criteria written by the state Workforce Development Board that covers effectiveness, programmatic and physical accessibility, and continuous improvement. Local Workforce Development Boards may also establish additional certification criteria.

Better Public Recognition

WIOA calls for the Department of Labor to establish a common identifier, also known as a “brand”, for the one-stop system to help job seekers and employers readily access services. The common identifier will be established through the final rule, with guidance and implementation assistance provided by ETA.

WIOA PROGRAMS

WIOA authorizes the one-stop career center (also known as American Job Center) service delivery system and six core programs. The core programs are:

- WIOA Title I (Adult, Dislocated Worker and Youth formula programs) administered by Department of Labor (DOL);
- Adult Education and Literacy Act programs administered by the Department of Education (DoED);
- Wagner-Peyser Act employment services administered by DOL; and
- Rehabilitation Act Title I programs administered by DoED.

WIOA also authorizes the Job Corps program, the YouthBuild program, Native American programs, and Migrant and Seasonal Farmworker programs, as well as evaluation and subtitle projects.

Effective dates for implementation and technical assistance

In general, WIOA takes effect on July 1, 2015; however, the planning requirements common indicators of performance take effect on July 1, 2016 and other exceptions specifically noted in the law.

DOL is working in coordination with the Department of Education and the Department of Health and Human Services to support the public workforce system to implement WIOA. The DOL WIOA Resource Page (www.doleta.gov/WIOA) will include updated guidance and resources, as well as communicate opportunities to provide input. The WIOA Collection Page (wioa.workforceone.org) provides links to technical assistance tools and information to support implementation. Questions regarding WIOA can be emailed to DOL.WIOA@dol.gov.
ABOUT NEW HAVEN WORKS

In January 2012, the New Haven Board of Aldermen created a Jobs Pipeline Working Group to investigate solutions for New Haven's unemployment and under-employment and regional employers' needs for well-trained job applicants.

The Working Group, which included individuals representing the business and institutional community, labor, elected leaders, city officials, foundations, the workforce system, un- and under-employed residents, and youth, advocated for a new program called "New Haven Works" that would partner with employers, service providers and the workforce system to match qualified New Haven residents to regional job opportunities.

New Haven Works seeks to grow the local economy and improve economic stability in all communities by providing employers with a trained and qualified workforce and connecting residents to good jobs.

Established in October 2012, New Haven Works is governed by an independent board of directors, and will be funded by public and private sources.

How does the SCSEP Program Work?
The Senior Community Service Employment Program (SCSEP) enrolls qualified older workers in part-time training positions and assigns them to public or 501(c)3 non-profit organizations in the local community.

The purpose of the SCSEP is to offer a “stepping stone” back into the workforce. It is a transitional program; positions are not intended to be permanent, all assignments are temporary.

Wages
Participant training wages and other costs are paid by A4TD through funding from Title V (SCSEP) of the Older Americans Act, administered by the US Department of Labor. There is no cost to an organization for hosting an SCSEP participant.

A4TD host training sites are expected to provide the participant with meaningful job skills training. They are also expected to encourage and help participants in their job search efforts.

Note: Host sites that can commit to hiring a participant upon successful completion of their training will be given priority. SCSEP participants undergo an assessment, testing, and additional skills training while on the program. Every effort is made to match the participant and host training site as closely as possible.

Training
Program participants are required to attend periodic training classes and/or workshops to help increase their skills.

Participants may be trained in one of 4 high demand areas: food service, retail, customer service, and healthcare.

THE ROUTE TO THE HIGH SCHOOL CREDIT PROGRAM - An Overview of the High School Credit Program - Registration Process for New/Returning Students

Program Description: To receive a high school credit diploma, you must earn 3 credits, including those you may have earned at your former high school. The New Haven Adult & Continuing Education credit diploma program offers small classes and on-line courses. When all credits are completed, of which four must be English, three in Mathematics, two in Science, and three Social Studies (including U.S. History and Civics), a diploma will be awarded. The program is open to students who are 17 years or older, do not hold a high school diploma, and are no longer officially enrolled in high school.

Effective July 1, 2011, the age at which a parent or guardian may provide consent for a child to withdraw from school was raised from 16 to 17 years old in C.G.S. Section 10-184. Therefore, individuals 17 years of age seeking enrollment in adult education should have officially withdrawn from school prior to July 1, 2011.

Adult Education creates and supports a positive, innovative learning community that promotes students success through several components:

- Providing a rigorous curriculum with units of study to build students' deep understanding of instructional lessons from the College and Career Ready standards. 2) Implementing a performance-based curriculum as another opportunity to assess students' learning. 3) Utilizing assessment practices that help students make explicit connections between the content of what was learned to a meaningful and relevant application. 4) Providing a competency based tracking & reporting system which lends itself to an individualized learning pace. 5) Establishing a clear & explicit promotion & graduation criteria. Each student will be placed in an advisory group for the duration of their schooling. Having the same advisory group will support positive relationships and bring a sense of belonging. The students at NHACE will engage in career awareness and have an opportunity to further explore and prepare for those careers through internships, volunteer opportunities, and specialized workshops.

THE ROUTE TO NATIONAL EXTERNAL DIPLOMA PROGRAM (NEDP) - is a non-credit, web-based high school diploma program. NEDP is an applied performance assessment system that assesses the high school level skills of adults and out-of-school youth. The NEDP evaluates the reading, writing, math, and workforce readiness skills of participants in life and work contexts. Many adults have acquired their high school level abilities through work, family, and community experiences; NEDP allows adults to demonstrate their skills by applying their life experiences to real-life situations presented in the program. NEDP evaluates competencies that are based on skills outlined in the Common Core College and Career Readiness Standards such as: Cultural Literacy, Financial Literacy, Health Literacy, Civic Literacy, Geography and History, Consumer Awareness, Science, and Twenty-first Century Workplace Skills. NEDP is designed for self-directed adults. Clients must have a general familiarity with the computer. Through a series of take-home projects and proctored In-Office Checks, this flexible program allows clients to complete assignments at home and to set their own pace of working. Their skill level at the time they begin and the amount of time they can devote to their school work determine the length of time required to complete the program. Upon completion, clients are awarded their high school transcript and diploma through New Haven Public Schools. NEDP is free to students who live in New Haven. All other individuals are welcome and should call the adult education office for the fee schedule. There is open enrollment throughout the year. What is Literacy Volunteers?

Literacy Volunteers of Greater New Haven is a non-profit organization that has been active in the region since 1976. Last year Literacy Volunteers supported 231 volunteer tutors who delivered free tutoring to more than 1246 adult students at 37 sites.

Literacy Volunteers is supported by Connecticut Department of Education funds, private foundations and community grants (CDBG dollars, the Community Foundation of Greater New Haven, United Way of Meriden/Wallingford, the Valley United Way, the Valley Community Foundation) as well as donations from individuals and businesses.

How Does the Program Work?

Adults who speak English but need help learning to read at a higher level work together in small groups. The groups meet twice a week with trained volunteer tutors using an established curriculum with workbooks. A computer software program provides additional help.

Non-English speaking (ESOL or English for Speakers of Other Languages) adults also work with tutors in small group settings. Classes are held weekly at a variety of sites throughout the area.

Day and night time classes are offered. All classes are free and are set up on a semester basis.

Who are the Tutors?

Tutors come from many different backgrounds – men and women of all ages and diverse life experiences. They may be retired, have full-time jobs or they may be students. Many have some college experience. Only a few have previously taught. What tutors have in common is their desire to help someone improve his or her life.

Tutors go through an Orientation and Training Program before they start tutoring. They receive ongoing support from Literacy Volunteers program managers, who help the tutors prepare lessons, test students and locate helpful resource materials.

The Small Contractor Development Program
165 Church Street, 6th Floor
New Haven, CT 06510
Office Hours: Monday - Friday 9am - 5pm
Phone: 203-946-8577
Fax: 203-946-7808

The City of New Haven is committed to developing and nurturing a competitive local construction industry which represents New Haven's ethnic diversity. To ensure equal opportunities for construction and construction-related contractors, and to enable minority- and women-owned firms to overcome a history of disadvantages by providing targeted opportunities and mentoring. The Small Contractor Development Program (SCDP) is part of the City of New Haven’s Department of Economic Development which promotes creating jobs, improving quality of life and driving economic growth.

The SCDP helps small, minority and women owned construction businesses grow and overcome challenges that may make it more difficult to win contracts and work on City of New Haven projects. The program encourages participation and inclusion of small, minority and women-owned businesses in City of New Haven projects by:
- Enforcing Chapter 12 1/4 of the New Haven Code of Ordinances to ensure compliance.
- Providing information and knowledge on contracts.
- Hosting workshops and seminars.
- Facilitating special networking events and information sessions.
- Targeted assistance for specific project needs.
- One-on-one technical assistance in the procurement process.
- Connecting registered contractors with greater opportunities.

The SCD program uses a two-pronged strategy to achieve an increase in MBE and WBE contractor participation for public projects that are funded, in whole or part, by city funds or by a developer that has received any type of subsidy from the city. There are currently 141 contractors registered in the program. Since its founding, SCD has also assisted more than 1,000 small, woman, and minority firms with contract issues, bid documents, payments, credit, contractor conflicts, and registration.

By setting goals on our projects, SCD ensures that all construction businesses have an equal opportunity to participate in City projects. In addition to goal setting, SCD is committed to ensuring that all projects are complying through real time monitoring and enforcement of M/WBE requirements. The very best business training is doing business. There is no better way for a small, underutilized firm to develop the skills and experience required for bigger jobs than to have a chance to work on smaller projects. City construction and construction-related projects valued under $150,000 are reserved for competitive bidding to registered contractors. Construction contracts valued over $150,000 must demonstrate efforts to achieve a 25% minority subcontractor goal. No bonding requirements for contracts under $100,000 in value. 10% construction contract value is set aside for registered SCDP contractors on school construction. A monthly contractor list is provided on our website which assists prime contractors in locating subcontractors. Working together, we can develop and nurture a competitive construction industry in the City of New Haven in which successful, efficient contractors who are representative of the City's ethnic diversity, provide high quality services for the City while offering good wages to their employees and earning profits that enable continuous business expansion and long-term growth.

JOBCORPS AND VETS:
HELPING VETERANS START A NEW CAREER

What is Job Corps?
Transitioning from the military and starting a new career can be challenging. Job Corps can help. At Job Corps, veterans can train for a new and rewarding career alongside other veterans. After training, our staff will work with veterans to find a job for up to 21 months.

Job Corps offers hands-on training to eligible 16- through 24-year-olds in America's fastest-growing careers. Each year Job Corps provides training and support services to more than 100,000 young people in more than 100 career areas at 123 centers across the nation. No matter where veterans are coming from or where they want to go, there is a Job Corps center nearby.

What does Job Corps offer to veterans?
Veterans receive priority enrollment at all Job Corps centers. While they may attend any Job Corps center in the nation, there are three centers that offer dorm areas exclusively for veterans. They will be living among other veterans who are also transitioning from the military to civilian life. Those centers are:

- Atterbury Job Corps Center in Edinburgh, Indiana
- Earle C. Clements Job Corps Center in Morganfield, Kentucky
- Excelsior Springs Job Corps Center in Excelsior Springs, Missouri

Starting a new career.
One of the program's biggest benefits is its post-graduate support. When veterans are ready to start looking for a job, staff will work with them to find job openings and submit resumes. Job Corps will help graduates for up to 21 months after graduation to connect with housing, transportation, and other support services.

Want to learn more about Job Corps? Visit us at www.jobcorps.gov.
Our goal is to afford Veterans the opportunity to return to healthy, productive lifestyles within their own communities.

The Homeless Veteran Supported Employment Program (HVSEP) provides vocational assistance, job development and placement, and ongoing supports to improve employment outcomes among homeless Veterans and Veterans at-risk of homelessness. Formerly homeless Veterans who have been trained as Vocational Rehabilitation Specialists (VRSs) provide these services.

VA’s Compensated Work Therapy (CWT) Program is a national vocational program comprised of three unique programs which assist homeless Veterans in returning to competitive employment: Sheltered Workshop, Transitional Work, and Supported Employment. Veterans in CWT are paid at least the federal or state minimum wage, whichever is higher.

VA’s National Cemetery Administration & Veterans Health Administration have also formed partnerships at national cemeteries, where formerly homeless Veterans from the CWT program have received work opportunities.

The Vocational Rehabilitation & Employment (VR&E) VetSuccess Program assists Veterans with service-connected disabilities to prepare for, find, and keep suitable jobs. Services that may be provided include: Comprehensive rehabilitation evaluation to determine abilities, skills, and interests for employment; employment services; assistance finding and keeping a job; and On the Job Training (OJT), apprenticeship, and non-paid work experiences.

For information about possible employment services in their area, Veterans can call the National Call Center for Homeless Veterans hotline at 1-877-4AID-VET. You will be connected to a trained VA staff member. Hotline staff will conduct a brief screen to assess your needs. Homeless Veterans will be connected with the Homeless Program point of contact at the nearest VA facility.

Contact information will be requested so staff may follow-up.

Housing Assistance For Veterans

Housing assistance for homeless Veterans and their families is available through several federal programs.
The U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development and VA Supportive Housing Program (HUD-VASH) partner to provide permanent, supportive housing and treatment services for homeless Veterans.

HUD allocated nearly 38,000 “Housing Choice” vouchers across the country, which allows Veterans and their families to live in market rate rental housing while VA provides case management services. A housing subsidy is paid to the landlord directly by the local public housing authority on behalf of the participating Veteran. The Veteran then pays the difference between the actual rent charged by the landlord and the amount subsidized by the program. The case management services facilitate the attainment of the Veteran’s recovery goals. The HUD-VASH Program is for the most vulnerable Veterans, and provides special services for women Veterans, those recently returning from combat zones, and Veterans with disabilities.

VA - Errera Community Care Center    (203) 479-8000
114-152 Boston Post Road, 2nd floor, West Haven, CT 06516
http://www.erreracc.com/

Over the past two decades, through a steady process of program modification and development, VA Connecticut’s Errera Community Care Center (“ECCC”) has evolved into one of the leading centers of innovation in psychosocial rehabilitation and in the integration of the psychosocial and biomedical approaches.

ECCC serves veterans struggling with mental illness and/or substance abuse disorders, homelessness, and/or aging. At the ECCC, a team of multidisciplinary mental health professionals come together to provide an array of community-based rehabilitative programs including day and crisis intervention programs, vocational programs, housing programs (ranging from subsidized to non-subsidized, supported to non-supported), homeless outreach and advocacy and case management programs.

Believing in recovery and hope, and utilizing the principles of psychiatric rehabilitation, ECCC staff members partner directly with the veteran being served to identify his or her goals and needs. Recovery plans build on the person’s strengths and help the individual compensate for the negative effects of the psychiatric disability. Services and supports are provided in the community to enhance natural support systems, to advance independence, and integration, so that each individual can live and function at optimal levels in the least restrictive environment possible.

Affirmative, non-stigmatizing attitudes about persons with mental illness, framed by an empowerment structure serve as the foundation of ECCC psychosocial rehabilitation services. ECCC represents the vanguard of the national movement to integrate Peer Specialists into mental health treatment and recovery programs. Peer Specialists are health and mental health service consumers who have received peer counseling training, and have demonstrated the skill, motivation, and desire to help their peers in a supportive and/or counseling role. Most have either suffered from mental or physical illness, substance abuse problems, and/or have been homeless. ECCC’s eleven Peer Specialists are integrated throughout ECCC’s programs. In a myriad of ways, they strengthen and enrich those programs.

People in recovery operate the Veterans Empowerment Committee (VEC). Recipients of services play an active role in the day-to-day operations of the ECCC by orienting all new recipients of services, running the community lunch program, identifying issues and needs, and advocating and seeking resources to meet these needs. Persons in recovery are involved in all aspects of ECCC programming including writing and/or co-signing all policies. Persons in recovery also hold direct leadership roles by serving as Community Mental Health Advisory Board members who advise and consult to the Chief, Mental Health Care line and staff at VA CT. They monitor the services provided, advocate both within the hospital leadership structure and within the recovery community on issues important to quality of care, access to care, and resources. In addition, recipients of services serve as facilitators for Vet-to-Vet, a consumer designed, run and facilitated psycho-educational program which was initiated at the ECCC by Moe Armstrong in early 2002. Meetings are both educational and supportive and are led by consumers each weekday. Critical to the full spectrum of services provided at the ECCC are the community partnerships that have been established and nurtured with a wide range of private industry, charitable and governmental bodies in the region.

At ECCC veterans are served with innovative, effective, individualized programs to find transitional and supportive housing and jobs through a Compensated Work Therapy Program. In addition, staff advocate locally and regionally to rectify the overwhelming effects of homelessness, poverty, inadequate resources and the stigma of mental illness.

Evidence of ECCC’s recognition as the leader in each of its fields of endeavor is found in the increasing number of organizations coming to ECCC to learn, the role its staff plays in education throughout the country, how it operates, and how its model can be replicated throughout the nation.

Soldiers’, Sailors’ and Marines’ Fund

Categories: Active Military/Veterans, Income Assistance, Older Adult Programs

The following is summarized from The Soldiers’, Sailors’ and Marines’ Fund web site http://www.ct.gov/ssf

Financial assistance for health and maintenance needs of eligible veterans with an honorable discharge, and their spouses (or widows) and their minor children (ages 0 through 17). The spouse or child must be living with the veteran or living with the veteran at the time of his/her death. Funds can be used for food, clothing, shelter, fuel, utilities, and burial expenses (For hospital care and other medical expenses, veterans should first contact the United States Veterans Administration (VA) to determine if they are eligible for any VA benefits). The Fund is limited by its earnings, so it may not be able to completely meet the veteran’s need.

Program Information and Eligibility Guide
To access shelter and housing resources call 2-1-1.

Effective Monday, January 26, 2015

Connecticut's Coordinated Entry guidelines now require that everyone seeking emergency shelter and housing go through the state's 2-1-1 system.

Community professionals, including educational, judicial, medical, and social service staff, should assist those who cannot call without help, by calling 2-1-1 with them.

After dialing, select option 3, and then option 1, to reach trained Housing Specialists. A 2-1-1 Housing Specialist will perform an initial assessment, make referrals as needed to help avoid homelessness and, when appropriate, schedule a community-level appointment with one of our designated case managers. This does not guarantee immediate shelter or housing placement. However, we will seek to access all available resources for each household through this process.

If you cannot dial 211 from your phone, dial 1-800-203-1234.

In times of extreme weather, please seek shelter immediately.

First-come, first-serve MALE walk-ins are still accepted at Emergency Shelter Management Services (645 Grand Avenue, New Haven) and the Columbus House Winter Overflow (232 Cedar Street, New Haven).

Our new Overnight Warming Center will accept male and female adults from January 15th to March 15th. The hours are 10:30 PM to 6:00 AM at Church on the Rock (55 Hamilton Street, New Haven, CT).

Open to individuals who are homeless and confronting chronic illness, mental illness or addiction, the Day Program fills a critical need for many people in our community.

Users are taught computer skills, both for personal use and to give them knowledge and experience that will help them in today's job market. Participants also have telephone access, and are given individual voice mail accounts. This combination of computer access, phone access, voice mail and email are important to finding a job or making medical appointments, and they help participants to remain connected with the community.

Sec. 1-1h. Identity cards. (a) Any person who does not possess a valid motor vehicle operator’s license may apply to the Department of Motor Vehicles for an identity card. The application for an identity card shall be accompanied by the birth certificate of the applicant or a certificate of identification of the applicant issued and authorized for such use by the Department of Correction. Such application shall include: (1) The applicant's name; (2) the applicant's address; (3) whether the address is permanent or temporary; (4) the applicant's date of birth; (5) notice to the applicant that false statements on such application are punishable under section 53a-157b; and (6) such other pertinent information as the Commissioner of Motor Vehicles deems necessary. A fee of twenty-two dollars and fifty cents shall be paid to the department upon issuance to the applicant of an identity card which contains a picture of the applicant and specifies the applicant's height, sex and eye color. The applicant shall sign the application in the presence of an official of the department. The commissioner may waive the fee for any applicant who has voluntarily surrendered such applicant's motor vehicle operator's license or whose license has been refused by the commissioner pursuant to subdivision (4) of subsection (e) of section 14-36. The commissioner may waive the fee for any applicant who is a resident of a homeless shelter or other facility for homeless persons. Know Yourself by Zarka Henford www.essentiallifeskills.net

To know yourself is your first priority.

How can you set goals, go about life, and have relationships if you don’t know who you are or what you want?

You really can’t.

To not know yourself leads to confusion and wasting much time in hit and miss situations.

We tend to underestimate the importance of knowing ourselves. Many of us go through each day reacting to events and just getting by rather than making conscious choices based on who we are and what we want.

When we don’t know where we are headed it’s hard to set goals, get motivated and determine the best course of action. Before we can do any of these things we must establish who we are.

To know yourself:

• Be aware of your strengths, weaknesses, likes and dislikes
• Observe and be aware of your moods, reactions and responses to what is happening around you
• Become aware of how these moods and emotions affect your state of mind
• Examine how you interact with others
• Observe how your environment affects you

Knowing and understanding yourself better, in turn, leads to better decision making, setting and reaching appropriate goals and altogether living more productively.

There are many interesting personality tests and evaluations for self-discovery that can help you become more in tune to yourself and are fun to do.

Two powerful tools I found exceptionally helpful are:

The Myers-Briggs Type Indicator (MBTI) (http://www.myersbriggs.org)

The Enneagram (http://www.enneagraminstitute.com/)

Not only do these tools help you understand yourself better and what drives some of your behaviors, they also help you understand and get along better with others.

Why Citizenship? The stigma of having lived with multiple experiences with mental health, trauma, co-occurring substance abuse, and having involvement in the criminal justice system, has led to many feeling and being seen as outsiders or second class citizens.
The Citizens Project started over 12 years ago to address these concerns of community disconnection. The project was inspired and developed from the research of Drs. Michael Rowe & Madelon Baranoski, and people in recovery. Dr. Rowe defines Citizenship as a person’s strong connection to the “5 R’s”: Rights, Roles, Responsibilities, Resources and Relationships that a healthy society makes available to its members through public and social institutions and through associations with others. The vision of the Citizens Project is for All to have a full and meaningful citizenship!

HOW TO DEAL WITH ANGER IN YOURSELF

Not by ignoring or suppressing it. Experience and science have shown repeatedly how poorly those strategies work. Once anger rises past a certain point, it seems to require satisfactory expression to be diffused. That is, it must be expelled in a way that feels good—in a way that is literally emptying. The goal then would be to expel it in a way that does as little damage as possible. How one does this depends on why the anger one feels is rising in the first place. Anger aimed at harming oneself. Depression is almost certainly the cause and should be identified and treated. Anger aimed at achieving control. Ask yourself why you feel out of control. Fear is a common reason. Actually lacking control is another. Anger is, fortunately or unfortunately, often a good strategy to regain control in the short-term, and easier to feel than many of the emotions that trigger it. But as it ultimately remains an expression of our unfulfilled need to control (if we actually had control, we wouldn’t get angry), far better to identify a means to actually provide us real control rather than the illusion of it. When such control isn’t possible, a next best option is to fully recognize what feelings being out of control leads to first, before anger: fear and uncertainty. If we can identify these feelings each time they arise, we at least have a chance to deal more constructively with them—or at least more consciously.

Anger aimed to make us feel powerful. Control isn’t exactly the issue here. It’s more that we feel small and insecure and have stumbled upon anger as an effective means to feel bigger than those around us. Recognizing this is what’s going on empowers us again to interrupt the generation of anger and instead to deal with the feelings of insecurity. Anger that arises from insecurity is particularly efficient at destroying intimate relationships.

Anger at injustice. How best to discharge this anger? Take action to correct the injustice, whether committed against yourself or someone else.

Of course, anger may arise for more than one of these reasons at one time. Anger at an injustice committed against you (as opposed to someone else) may intermingle with anger aimed at achieving control (as an expression of a wish for control that could have prevented the injustice from being committed in the first place). Anger aimed at yourself for being powerless in a given situation may intermingle with anger at someone else as a way to achieve the very power you lack.

HOW TO DIFFUSE ANGER IN OTHERS

The goal here is two-fold, your ability to carry out the second being dependent on your ability to carry out the first:

Remain in control of yourself. When you find yourself on the receiving end of someone’s anger, they’re either trying to control you in some way or make you feel small so they can feel big. Or you’ve done them some kind of wrong. You should seek to understand which of the three it is. You must tell yourself that anger is their strategy and has nothing to do with you at all, unless of course you really have committed an injustice against them, in which case you should make amends.

Help them discharge their anger in a way that feels satisfying without causing harm. Responding to anger with anger rarely accomplishes anything positive. If you remain in control of yourself so that another’s anger neither manipulates you nor makes you feel small, you have a chance to help them deal with the real issue that triggered their anger in the first place. What tactics work to accomplish this?

Validate their anger. Resisting a person’s anger, getting angry back at them, denying that their anger is justified all do nothing more than inflame it. Even if their anger isn’t justified in your mind, what would convincing them of that accomplish? It likely wouldn’t give them control over it. Feelings require no justification to be felt. Apologize. I told my patient how sorry I was he had such an unpleasant experience. It wasn’t my fault, but in commiserating with him, I was able to validate his anger.

Help turn their anger into language. Get them to express in words, rather than in harmful action, just how angry they are. This is often an effective way to help them discharge their anger in a way that feels satisfying. Get angry with them. Get even angrier than they are. Transform yourself from the object of their anger into their partner in feeling the same anger as they.

Though buried deeply, fear was the obvious cause of my patient’s anger, an emotion with which I could far more easily sympathize. As he’d already calmed down by the time he came to see me (he’d satisfactorily discharged a lot of his anger already over the phone), I spent most of my time validating his anger and attempting to address its underlying cause. He never would acknowledge he was afraid, however, which made me worry there would be similar future outbursts (there were), but having fully apprehended its cause, his anger never again intimidated me. He was ultimately diagnosed with lymphoma, endured several cycles of chemotherapy, and was eventually cured. Of his lymphoma, that is.

Removal of Barriers, Inclusion of People

Welcome to

CDR CENTER FOR DISABILITY RIGHTS
Where do you start?

Contact the Bureau of Rehabilitation Services (BRS) office nearest to your home to apply for services. If you are younger than 18 years old, your parent or guardian will have to be involved in the process. You will be asked to provide information about your disability, your education and any work or volunteer opportunities you may have had. When necessary, you may be asked to participate in medical, psychiatric, psychological or other evaluations that will be paid for by BRS.

Talk to a professional

A Vocational Rehabilitation (VR) counselor will explain how our process works and answer any questions you may have. Once you make the decision to apply for services the counselor has up to 60 days to determine if you are eligible.

Our expertise, your plan

If you are eligible for VR services, you will work with a BRS counselor to develop an Individualized Plan for Employment (IPE). Your IPE will identify your vocational goal, what steps are needed to help you achieve your goal and who is responsible for each step. Both you and your counselor will reach an agreement on your IPE services and take actions toward completing each service of the IPE.

BRS @ work

BRS provides individualized services to help you find employment that best matches your interests, values, personality and abilities. Services are provided based on the current job market and availability of funds. All services must be pre-authorized by your BRS counselor.

BRS may provide a full range of services, in any combination, that best fit your needs, including:

- Vocational counseling
- Benefits counseling
- Job search assistance
- School-to-work transition services
- Skills training and career education in college and/or vocational schools
- On-the-job training in business and industry
- Assistive technology services such as adaptive equipment for mobility, communication and work activities
- Vehicle and home modification
- Supported employment services
- Services to assist in restoring or improving a physical and/or mental impairment
- Nursing home transition services
- Help accessing other programs and services

Your counselor will explain when BRS will pay for part or all of a service. We will also help you find other resources including financial aid, medical insurance and your own finances.

Important factors that impact eligibility

- If you receive Supplemental Security Income (SSI) or Social Security Disability Insurance (SSDI), you may be presumed eligible for VR services. Our benefits specialists are here to help you understand how work can affect your benefits.
- Individuals with the most significant disabilities may receive services on a priority basis called the Order of Selection.
- If your disability is not found to be “significant,” you may not be eligible for services. If this occurs, you may be added to a waiting list and be given other potential options for assistance. More help if you need it.

The Client Assistance Program (CAP) can provide advice, advocacy and legal information regarding BRS. CAP is located at: The Office of Protection and Advocacy (P&A) 60-B Weston Street, Hartford, CT 06120 Phone: 1-800-842-7303 (toll-free) or 860-297-4326 (statewide).

Warning Signs of Identity Theft
Steps you can take should Identity Theft happen to you

What Do Thieves Do With Your Information?
Once identity thieves have your personal information, they can drain your bank account, run up charges on your credit cards, open new utility accounts, or get medical treatment on your health insurance. An identity thief can file a tax refund in your name and get your refund. In some extreme cases, a thief might even give your name to the police during an arrest.

Guess That Someone Has Stolen Your Information:

- You see withdrawals from your bank account that you can’t explain.
- You don’t get your bills or other mail.
- Merchants refuse your checks.
- Debt collectors call you about debts that aren’t yours.
- You find unfamiliar accounts or charges on your credit report.
- Medical providers bill you for services you didn’t use.
- Your health plan rejects your legitimate medical claim because the records show you’ve reached your benefits limit.
- A health plan won’t cover you because your medical records show a condition you don’t have.
- The IRS notifies you that more than one tax return was filed in your name, or that you have income from an employer you don’t work for.
- You get notice that your information was compromised by a data breach at a company where you do business or have an account.

If your wallet, Social Security number, or other personal information is lost or stolen, there are steps you can take to help protect yourself from identity theft.

When Information Is Lost or Exposed
Did you recently get a notice that says your personal information was exposed in a data breach? Did you lose your wallet? Or learn that an online account was hacked? Depending on what information was lost, there are steps you can take to help protect yourself from identity theft.

Is someone using your personal information to open new accounts or make purchases? Take these steps to stop the identity thief.

Step 1: Call the companies where you know fraud occurred.
- Call the fraud department. Explain that someone stole your identity.
- Ask them to close or freeze the accounts. Then, no one can add new charges unless you agree.
- Change logins, passwords and PINs for your accounts.
- You might have to contact these companies again after you have an Identity Theft Report.

Step 2: Place a fraud alert and get your credit report.
- Contact one of the three credit bureaus. That company must tell the other two.
Equifax.com/CreditReportAssistance 1-888-746-0008
Experian.com/fraudalert 1-888-397-3742
TransUnion.com/fraud 1-800-680-7289

A fraud alert is free. It will make it harder for someone to open new accounts in your name.

You’ll get a letter from each credit bureau. It will confirm that they placed a fraud alert on your file.

Get your free credit report right away. Go to annualcreditreport.com or call 1-877-322-8228.

Did you already order your free annual reports this year? If so, you can pay to get your report immediately. Or follow the instructions in each fraud alert confirmation letter to get a free report, but it might take longer.

Review your reports. Make note of any account or transaction you don’t recognize. This will help you report the theft to the FTC and the police.

Call 1-877-438-4338 to make your report. Give as many details as you can. (There is a complaint form online based on the information you provide, the FTC will create your Identity Theft Affidavit. You’ll need this to complete other steps. If you use the website to make your report - print and save your FTC Identity Theft Affidavit immediately. Once you leave the page, you won’t be able to get your affidavit.

Do you need to update your affidavit? Call 1-877-438-4338.

Step 4: File a report with your local police department.
Go to your local police office with:
- a copy of your FTC Identity Theft Affidavit
- a government-issued ID with a photo
- proof of your address (mortgage statement, rental agreement, or utilities bill)
- any other proof you have of the theft [bills, IRS notices, etc.]

FTC’s Memo to Law Enforcement [PDF] may be found at http://www.consumer.ftc.gov/sites/default/files/articles/pdf/pdf-0088-ftc-memo-law-enforcement.pdf
Tell the police someone stole your identity and you need to file a report. If they are reluctant, show them the FTC’s Memo to Law Enforcement.

Ask for a copy of the police report. You’ll need this to complete other steps.

Create your Identity Theft Report by combining your FTC Identity Theft Affidavit with your police report.

Identity Theft Affidavit plus Police Report equals Identity Theft Report

Your identity theft report proves to businesses that someone stole your identity. It also guarantees you certain rights.

What To Do Next - Take a deep breath and begin to repair the damage.

Close new accounts opened in your name.
Now that you have an Identity Theft Report, call the fraud department of each business where an account was opened. Explain that someone stole your identity. Ask the business to close the account.

Ask the business to send you a letter confirming that:
- the fraudulent account isn’t yours
- you aren’t liable for it
- it was removed from your credit report

Keep this letter. Use it if the account appears on your credit report later on.
Write down who you contacted and when. The business may require you to send them a copy of your Identity Theft Report or complete a special dispute form. This sample letter can help.

Identity Theft Dispute Letter to a Company (for a new account)
This sample letter (which follows) will help you dispute and close a fraudulent account that was opened in your name. The text in [brackets] indicates where you must customize the letter.

AMERICANS NINE out of 10 CONSUME

TOO MUCH SODIUM

On average, American adults eat more than 3,400 milligrams of sodium daily—more than double the American Heart Association's recommended limit of 1,500 milligrams.

WHERE

- 25% comes from restaurants*
- 65% comes from food bought in retail stores*
- 10% comes from home cooking & at the table*

*Source: Centers for Disease Control (CDC)

Choose lower-sodium foods and cook at home more often.

WHERE does the sodium we eat come from?

- 3,400 mg average sodium intake
- 1,500 mg recommended sodium intake

HOW can I control how much sodium I eat?

- Look for the Heart-Check mark to find products that can help you make smarter choices about the foods you eat.
- Check the Nutrition Facts label for the amount of sodium per serving AND the number of servings per container.
- Read food labels. Assorted brands of the same food often have different sodium amounts.

Excess sodium increases a person's risk for HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE, which can lead to heart disease and stroke.

Top Ten Bed Bugs Tips

1. Make sure you really have bed bugs, not fleas, ticks or some other insect. You can compare your insect to the pictures on our bed bug Web page or show it to your local extension agent.

2. Don’t panic! Eliminating bed bugs is difficult, but it’s not impossible. Don’t throw out all of your things because most of them can be treated and saved. Throwing stuff out is expensive, may spread the bed bugs and could cause more stress.

3. Think through your treatment options — Don’t immediately reach for the spray can. Try other things first. Integrated pest management (IPM) techniques may reduce the number of bed bugs and limit your contact with pesticides. If pesticides are needed, always follow label directions or hire a professional. There is help available to learn about treatment options.

4. Reduce the number of hiding places — Clean up the clutter. A cluttered home provides more places for bed bugs to hide and makes locating and treating them harder. If bed bugs are in your mattress, using special bed bug covers (encasements) on your mattress and box springs makes it harder for bed bugs to get to you while you sleep. Leave the encasements on for a year. Be sure to buy a product that has been tested for bed bugs and is strong enough to last for the full year without tearing.

5. Regularly wash and heat-dry your bed sheets, blankets, bedspreads and any clothing that touches the floor. This reduces the number of bed bugs. Bed bugs and their eggs can hide in laundry containers/hampers, so clean them when you do the laundry.

6. Don’t rely on do-it-yourself freezing as a reliable method for bed bug control. While freezing can kill bed bugs, temperatures must remain very low for a long time. Home freezers are usually not cold enough to kill bed bugs. Putting things outside in freezing temperatures can kill bed bugs, but it can take several days when the temperature is 0°F and almost a week when the temperature is 20°F.

7. Use heat to kill bed bugs, but be very careful. Raising the indoor temperature with the thermostat or space heaters won’t do the job. Special equipment and very high temperatures are necessary for successful heat treatment. Black plastic bags in the sun might work to kill bed bugs in luggage or small items, if the contents become hot enough (about 110°F for at least 3 hours).

8. Don’t pass your bed bugs on to others. Bed bugs are good hitchhikers. If you throw out a mattress or furniture that has bed bugs in it, you should slash or in some way destroy it so that no one else takes it and gets bed bugs.

9. Reduce the number of bed bugs to reduce bites. Thorough vacuuming can get rid of some of your bed bugs. Carefully vacuum rugs, floors, upholstered furniture, bed frames, under beds, around bed legs, and all cracks and crevices around the room. Change the bag after each use so the bed bugs can’t escape. Place the used bag in a tightly sealed plastic bag and in an outside garbage bin.

10. Turn to the professionals, if needed. Hiring an experienced, responsible pest control professional can increase your chance of success in getting rid of bed bugs. If you hire an expert, be sure it’s a company with a good reputation and request that it use an IPM approach. Contact your state pesticide agency for guidance about hiring professional pest control companies.
